Dear Admissions Committee:

I would like to express my sincerest recommendation for my former student, Jared Reef, to be admitted to your institution next fall. My support stems from the following basis: Jared is an industrious, cooperative, outgoing, intelligent, dedicated and thoughtful individual. Jared was a student of mine in his sophomore year in my chemistry class. Even though, chemistry was a very challenging course for him, he worked and progressed positively throughout the whole academic year. Moreover, Jared exemplifies an enthusiastic and hard-working learner.

For instance, I recall the time when he asked questions and volunteered to write materials on the white board. I had discussed the concept of balancing equations. It seemed that most of the students were confused, so I decided to use magnetic shapes to concretely depict and describe how the equation was balanced. Still, no one seemed to understand the concept. Thus, I encouraged them to come after school for extra help. However, he was not satisfied then, for he asked if he could do an example on the board so that he may work it out on the board to exemplify how it is done effectively. Furthermore, he used the magnetic shapes and attempted to solve the equation. To his amazement and ours, he actually solved it correctly. The class cheered as he demonstrated how to solve it hands-on. I was quite impressed with his perseverance and tenacity to be able to learn from his methods by advocating for his interests and others. Indeed, he was a great class leader and I utilized his demonstration of skills quite often for he obtained great leadership skills.

In addition, he has shared with me his recent extracurricular activities. He participates in golf, baseball, mock trial, and ping pong club. Furthermore, in term of his future plans, he would like to pursue Business and hopefully become an illustrious CEO someday.

In conclusion, his maturity, sense of self-awareness of his character, strong morals and ethical values will indeed carry him far and beyond the road to success. Finally, I would like to comment further that Jared Reef will not disappoint you for having selected him to your fine institution. If you have any questions regarding Jared Reef, please contact me at Sharon High School, (781) 784-1554 x 8304. Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Tae H. Cho, Ph. D.
